

Fighting Smallpox in Africa amid Tribalism, Terror and the Cold War

Come hear a story few have ever heard!

Join me near the Sahara in the fight against smallpox. Then we'll move to a steamy volcanic island where the dictator has burned all boats and shut down the press.

While my husband is on the frontline of human vs. microbe, our family is on a frontline of a different sort.

Author, Speaker Bee Bloeser

“Bee will engage and move you deeply while sharing her personal journey. With a backdrop of corruption, genocide, and repression of women, she still provides an insightful tapestry of victories won, hope for the future.”

—Linda Herzog, J.D.

“A riveting account of the events, effort and victory of the eradication of smallpox. . . a speaker who makes the facts come alive—devastation of disease and other heart-rending realities. A must-hear for all.”

—Kay M.

“Bee Bloeser’s story reads like a political thriller, women’s history, and African adventure rolled into one. . . brings insight and humor to a dark tale. . . Riveting.”

—Pamela Alexander, Pulitzer nominee
